Harold Kitner, painter, Professor of Art at Kent State University and Art Critic of the Akron Beacon Journal, will discuss ART THROUGH THE EYES OF A JEWISH PAINTER at the Cleveland Museum of Art on Sunday March 27th at 3:45 p.m. This lecture is given in connection with the current showing of the CONTEMPORARY FINE ARTS EXHIBIT OF THE AMERICAN JEWISH TRICENTENARY, celebrating the 300th anniversary of the landing of the first Jewish settlers in America. A graduate of the Cleveland Institute of Art and the recipient of two degrees from Western Reserve University, Kitner has won awards in painting at the annual May Show of the Museum and five consecutive awards in the Akron May Show as well as at the Butler Art Institute in Youngstown and the Canton Art Institute. At the Cleveland Jewish Center and the Akron Art Institute he has had one man shows. A former instructor at the Cleveland Institute of Art, he teaches now at the Akron Art Institute and the Jewish Center in Akron.
